Support Staff Response

Dear Mike Fara,

Thank you for contacting Go Daddy's Copyright Claims Department. We have suspended the site in question pending a resolution of this matter. Please allow up to 30 minutes for these changes to take effect.

As a web hosting provider, it is not our position to act as the arbiter of intellectual property disputes, to judge who is right or wrong in a claim of infringement, or to determine who, if anyone, actually owns the content in question. We have provided the specifics of your infringement claim to the owner of the site, along with your contact information, since the most efficient resolution of this situation comes through direct communication between the two parties involved.

If the site owner indicates they are prepared to remove the infringing content, we will re-activate the hosting account in order to allow that to happen. If they complete a counter notification regarding the work(s) in question, according to our Copyright Infringement Policy, a copy of the counter notification will be sent to you. The site will then be re-activated 10 days following receipt of the counter notification by us unless we receive official notice that you have initiated court proceedings. If we do receive such official notice, the website will remain down according to the directions of the court(s) at that time.

If you have specific questions about the actions we have taken, please let us know.

Thank you,

Calvin

Customer Inquiry

Attached is a formal complaint of copyright violation, illegal activity, and abuse taking place at Windows8AZ.com. This is a site hosted by GoDaddy.com committing specific instances of copyright theft and circumvention of copyright protection systems. Under your TOS, illegal activity is not permitted, although one of your customer service representatives alluded to his own interpretation that this was limited to "things like child porn", we ask otherwise. Thus this e-mail has been sent to copyrightclaims@godaddy.com and abuse@godaddy.com.

If you have difficulties receiving or opening this attachment, it can be found at <http://windows7forums.com/legal/Windows8AZ-Complaint-signed.pdf>.
